Subject: Public Works Director Update

Public Works team – Today will be Dave Davis’ last day with the City. Dave has made significant contributions in his 40 years with Everett, and leaves a legacy of strong leadership and service. He expressed his appreciation and respect for his fellow employees, and his gratitude for the support of the mayors and council members he has served under.

Over the next few months we’ll do a full assessment of Public Works to determine how best to structure the department as we move forward. Paul Kaftanski will serve as interim Public Works director during this time, working closely with the department’s management team.

I know many of you may have questions about these changes, and I plan to make myself available at staff meetings over the coming weeks. In the meantime, please contact Paul Kaftanski with any operational or procedural questions.

Managers and supervisors, please share this email with employees who don’t have regular email access.

Thank you,
Mayor Franklin
